World Rowing Under 23 Championships General Information
The World Rowing Under 23 Championships showcase up-and-coming athletes who are no longer eligible to compete at the junior level but are still in need of further development to rank among top senior elite rowers. Held for the first time in 1976 in Macon, France, under the title “Seniors Match,” it eventually became the “Nations Cup” in 1992. FISA’s 2005 Extraordinary Congress in Dubrovnik, Croatia, voted to upgrade the World Rowing Under 23 Regatta to world rowing championship status. The first official World Rowing Under 23 Championships were raced in 2004. Approximately 600 athletes from 40 countries compete annually.

2012 World Rowing Under 23 Championships
This year’s regatta features competition in 21 events: men’s single sculls, women’s single sculls, lightweight men’s single sculls, lightweight women’s single sculls, men’s double sculls, women’s double sculls, lightweight men’s double sculls, lightweight women’s double sculls, men’s pair, women’s pair, lightweight men’s pair, men’s quadruple sculls, women’s quadruple sculls, lightweight men’s quadruple sculls, lightweight women’s quadruple sculls, men’s four, lightweight men’s four, men’s four with coxswain, men’s eight and women’s eight. The United States will have crews competing in all 21 events.

Trakai, Lithuania
Trakai, population 5,400, is a historic city that lies 28 kilometers west of Vilnius, the capital of Lithuania. Trakai District is one of the most beautiful and historically interesting regions in Lithuania. The town of Trakai was first mentioned in German history in 1337, which is regarded to be the official date of its foundation. There are over 200 lakes in the region of which Galve is the deepest.

There is a long tradition of rowing in Lithuania. Rowing was first practiced in Klaipeda in 1885, which then spread to other parts of the country. In Trakai, rowing competitions have been organized on a yearly basis since 1928. In 1962, the Ambers Oars Regatta was organized after the Vilnius men’s eight won a regatta in the United States and wanted to attract the attention of rowers all over the world. The Lithuania Rowing Federation joined FISA in 1991.

Held at Trakai’s Lake Galve, this popular rowing spot was the venue of the 2002 World Rowing Junior Championships, 2006 FISU World Student Championships and 2008 FISA World Masters Regatta. It is known for its picturesque island castle right by the finish line. The venue is also the home of the international Amber Oars Regatta, and it was a popular training venue before 1991 for Soviet Union athletes. The lake is 2,000 meters and 87.5 meters wide.

USRowing has created The Row to London to engage sponsors leading up to the 2012 Olympic Games, with proceeds going to help ensure the U.S. team’s success. Opportunities also exist to partner with America Rows – supporting diversity initiatives and adaptive programs. For more information, please contact Beth Kohl at beth@usrowing.org.

Highlights from the 2011 World Rowing Under 23 Championships
The United States won four medals and set two under 23 world best times at the 2011 World Rowing Under 23 Championships. The U.S. won gold in the women’s pair and men’s eight, and bronze in the women’s eight and lightweight men’s single sculls.

Racing in a strong tailwind during Saturday’s first day of finals, Grace Luczak and Felice Mueller took advantage of the course conditions to break the under 23 world best time in the women’s pair by more than nine seconds. Mueller and teammate Ashley Kroll set the existing record in 2010.

Romania’s Cristina Grigoras and Andreea Boghian, silver medalists in the event in 2010, led at the 750-meter mark, with the United States trailing by 0.37 seconds. It wasn’t until the 1,250-meter mark that the U.S. moved into gold medal position. Luczak and Mueller crossed the finish line three boat lengths ahead of Romania, in what the race commentator defined as “a class of their own.” The U.S. posted a 7:05.13, with Romania finishing in a 7:12.97 for the silver medal.

In one of the most exciting races of Sunday’s finals, the U.S. men’s eight powered down the course to win gold and set a new under 23 world best time of 5:24.31.

In a steady downpour and gusty tailwind, the Czech Republic took the lead early, with the U.S. close behind in second. But, the U.S. crew walked through the Czech Republic just before the halfway mark and continued to press. Coxswain Anthony Altimari, Mike Gennaro, Dariush Aghai, Thomas Dethlefs, Ty Otto, Austin Hack, Robert Munn, Christopher Yeager and Alexander Bunkers crossed 1.9 seconds ahead of the Czech Republic’s 5:26.21 for gold.

The U.S. women’s eight came away with a bronze medal on Sunday, making it the sixth consecutive year that the U.S. reached the podium in the event.

The crew of Leigh Carrol, Olivia Coffey, Grace Luczak, Heidi Robbins, Maureen McAuliffe, Jenifer Forbes, Kelly Pierce, Felice Mueller and Erika Roddy came to the line with a third-place finish in the race for lanes Friday.

In the final, the U.S. and Canada were the first crews to pull away from the pack at the start, with the U.S. taking a deck-length lead at the 500-meter mark. By the 1,000-meter mark, Canada took the lead, with New Zealand going strong in the outside lane and challenging for the silver medal position.

The Canadian crew had a clear lead going into the sprint. It crossed in 6:03.23 for gold, with New Zealand in 6:06.02 for silver. The U.S. crew finished 1.35 seconds back in third with a 6:07.37.

Andrew Campbell won bronze in the lightweight men’s single sculls, giving the U.S. its best-ever finish and first medal in the event. Campbell etched his name in the history books at the 2010 World Rowing Junior Championships, winning bronze in the men’s single sculls. In 2011 in Amsterdam, Campbell advanced through each of his preliminary races with ease, winning the heat, the quarterfinal and finishing second in his semifinal before coming to the line on Sunday.

In the final, Peru’s Renzo Leon Garcia was first off the start, leading by a bow-ball over Bulgaria’s Nedelcho Vasilev within the first few strokes. Coming across the 500-meter mark, Campbell was in second behind France’s Jeremie Azou, one of the country’s top lightweight scullers with two world championship silver medals under his belt.

Azou maintained his comfortable lead the entire length of the course, crossing the line with open water in 6:46.93 for the gold medal and a new under 23 world best time.

Greece’s Panagiotis Magdanis, the reigning world champion in the under 23 lightweight double sculls, was even with Campbell with 500 meters to go. Campbell took up the rating, gaining a one-length lead within 10 strokes. Magdanis responded with a move of his own and edged ahead in the last few strokes of the race to win silver in 6:55.01. Campbell crossed third for the bronze medal in 6:57.00. Peru crossed fourth in 7:05.73.

The U.S. also reached the final in the men’s quadruple sculls, women’s four and lightweight women’s double sculls.
